BULLETIN

NEWS FROM TAYLOR UNIVERSITY, UPLAND, IND. JANUARY 1963

President B. Joseph Martin confers honorary LL.D. degree upon Robert Wyatt (center) during Master Teacher Convocation, as Dr. Milo A. Rediger, Academic Dean secures symbolic hood on the recipient. Dr. Wyatt is executive secretary of the Indiana State Teachers Association.

Master Teacher Day Held; State Official Awarded LL.D. Degree

Two veteran Indiana public school teachers received Master-Teacher awards at Taylor University November 2, as part of the annual Master-Teacher Day ceremonies. Award recipients were Mrs. Lena Coombes, high school teacher from Kokomo, and Mrs. Helen Macklin, elementary teacher from Berne.

Highlight of the day was an Award Convocation at 8:00 p.m. when an honorary LL.D. degree was conferred upon Robert Wyatt, executive secretary of the Indiana State Teachers Association and president-elect of the National Education Association.

Speaker was Dr. Timothy L. Smith, Associate Professor of History and Education, University of Minnesota.

Other dignitaries participating in the Convocation included William Wilson, Superintendent of Public Instruction, State of Indiana; Mrs. Sparkle Crowe, President of the Indiana State Teachers Association; Dr. Earl Johnson, Dean, Division of Education, Ball State Teachers College and Dr. Karl Massanari, Director of Teacher Education, Goshen College.

In addition, afternoon lectures were presented on "Guidance as a Profession," by William Watson, and "Special Education as a Profession," by Wilbur Haley. Both men are affiliated with the Fort Wayne Public School system.

SEVENTH ANNUAL THADDEUS READE LECTURES ANNOUNCED

ADDRESSES TO BE GIVEN BY MISSIONS EXECUTIVE

The seventh annual Thaddeus Reade Memorial Lectures will be presented January 31, Thursday, with Dr. Eugene L. Smith, Chief Executive of the Overseas Missionary Program of the Methodist Church, as guest lecturer.

An author, educator and minister, Dr. Smith has written several books, has taught at New York University, and has been pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, Rosell, New Jersey, the Emory Methodist Church, Jersey City and St. Mark's Church, the largest Methodist church in Brooklyn.

Widely Traveled

He has traveled widely on mission fields in Africa, Europe, Asia, and Latin America studying conditions and meeting with missionaries and leading Christian nationals. Dr. Smith attended Willamette University, Drew Theological Seminary, and N. Y. U. where he earned the PH.D. degree. He also holds honorary degrees from American University and Willamette. Dr. Smith was a Youth Conference speaker at Taylor in 1961.

Guests Invited

All ministers within driving distance are invited to visit the campus for the day to attend the lectures, which are scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 7:00 p.m. Additional sessions for ministers will be held at 10:45 and 2:30.

Visitors are invited to attend the evening lecture.

"This Year Also"

Luke 13:8 "And he answering said unto him, Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it."

The year is 1892, the speaker is Charles H. Spurgeon, the pulpit is a sick-bed. The text is Luke 13:8, the introductory remarks are as follows: "at the opening of another year and at the commencement of another volume of sermons we earnestly desire to utter the word of exhortation; but, alas, at this present the pastor is a prisoner and must speak from his pillow instead of his pulpit. Let not the few words which we put together come with diminished power from a sick man, for the musket fired by a wounded soldier sends forth the bullet with none the less force."

Mercy Is No Novelty

The beginning of another year, in whatever circumstances we find ourselves, suggests a retrospect. Let us take it deliberately and honestly. This year indicates that the dresser of the vineyard was not for the first time aware of the fig-tree's failure, neither had the owner come for the first time seeking figs in vain. God, who gives us "this year also", has given us others before it; his sparing mercy is no novelty, his patience has long been taxed by our failings.

First came our youthful years. How did we spend them? He who saw us misuse those golden months of youth nevertheless affords us "this year also."

Upon the heels of our youthful years came early manhood. Did we present unto the Lord the fruit of those years? If so, we may well adore the grace that saved us. If not, the past points its finger. It warns us not to let this year also follow the rest.

The Half-Way House

Many of us are in the prime of life and our years spent are not few. Have we reached the half-way house and still do not know whither we are going? Are men fools at forty? A half-century old by the calendar and yet far off from spiritual discretion? Alas, that men should reach this age still without knowledge of God! But continued resistance breeds callousness of heart, and when the soul has been sleeping in indifference, it is hard to arouse it from the deadly slumber.

Let us not refuse these questions of self-examination. During our years of faithfulness or unfaithfulness God has constantly been doing great things for us and sustaining us in His love. In the light of these blessings have we become weaned from the world and welded to Christ?

The words "this year also" suggest opportunities for service. Shall the new year be a repetition of the last? Are we captive to the follies of life, or freed by divine grace? Reviewing the past we lament our shallow living which we would not be guilty of "this year also" and we appreciate anew the divine love which is available to us each day. Only the infinite mercy of God holds back the acts of judgment from the tree of barrenness.

May I suggest that the expression "this year also" implies a limit?

Just One Year

The vine-dresser asks for only one year. If the work should not prove effective He would plead no more. The tree should fall.

If men will not repent they must perish. If they will not be benefited by the spade they must fall by the axe.

There will come a last year to each of us, either through the metamorphosis from physical to spiritual life or through the second coming of our Lord. With these truths in view may each of us redeem the time.

1963. Just another year? With His help may it be a year of fruitfulness and spiritual attainment for us all.

TROJAN NAMED TO "LITTLE ALL-AMERICAN" GRID TEAM

DAVENPORT REPEATS AS "COACH OF THE YEAR"

Rudy Moberg, a senior tackle on the Taylor University football squad has been named to the Williamson Little All-American team for 1962. This selection is based on the consensus opinion of the nation's college athletic departments as expressed in a poll conducted by the Williamson National Football Rating System.

Moberg is the first Taylor football player in history to receive this honor, and the only player in Indiana named to the Williamson team this year.

Moberg was also awarded "All Hoosier Conference" tackle honors.

Head coach Bob Davenport, former All-American fullback at UCLA, was named "Coach of the Year" in the Hoosier Conference for the second consecutive year.

Beloved Dr. John C. Wengatz, veteran Methodist missionary, has published a new book, "Songs In The Jungles," an account of unusual experiences in Africa. Price: $2.95. His address is 1365 Sunnyside Drive, Winter Park, Florida.

YOUTH CONFERENCE SLATED APRIL 19-21

The annual Youth Conference at Taylor will be held April 19-21 with 800 young people between 14 and 23 years of age expected for a weekend of evangelism, spiritual challenge and group discussions. The speakers will be Dr. Arthur F. Glasser, Home Director for North America, China Inland Mission, and the Reverend George E. Gardiner, pastor of the Christian Tabernacle, Dayton, Ohio.

Dr. Glasser was a missionary in southwest China from 1946-51, a representative of the Navigators, 1945-1946, and chaplain in the United States Navy from 1942-1945.

He is a graduate of Cornell University, with a degree in civil engineering; Moody Bible Institute, and Faith Theological Seminary.

The Reverend Gardiner was pastor of the Cornerstone Baptist Church in Cambridge, Massachusetts, from 1954-1958. While there he was on the Executive Committee of the New England Fellowship of Evangelicals, and director of the Bible Conference in Rumney, New Hampshire.

Glasser

Gardiner

He conducts a radio program heard by 50,000 each week, and is president of the Evangelical Ministers Association of Dayton.

Those hoping to attend the conference are urged to secure reservation blanks promptly. Write to Tom Allen, Youth Conference, Taylor University, Upland, Indiana.

YOUNG NETTERS HOLD SURPRISING 9-2 MARK; WIN TWO TOURNEYS

The Taylor Trojans, youngest basketball aggregation Coach Odle has fielded in sixteen years, have far exceeded pre-season expectations with 9 wins in 11 games to date including the Earlham and Marshall, Michigan Tourney Championships. The high-scoring team is averaging 89 points per game.

With only one senior, three juniors, and the rest freshmen and sophomores the team has, in most cases, overcome inexperience and lack of height with determination, speed and rapid development.
